R. F. Burch Jr., of Eastman, wired Governor Rivers yesterday he had not resigned his post as commissioner of natural resources. The white-haired administrator of the five-unit department, who recently underwent a serious surgical operation, said the Governor must have "misunderstood" him in announcing he had resigned.

There was immediate speculation among some officials that Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, might head the lending agency, and Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board, was called a likely choice for head of the security agency.

Cites Huge Savings. In transmitting the plan to congress, Mr. Roosevelt stressed the point that the reorganization bill forbade him to do away with "functions" of agencies authorized by law. This, he said, narrowed the possibilities for economy to a reduction in overhead expenses to be achieved by consolidating the administration of similar activities. "The overhead administrative" costs of all the agencies affected in reorganization plan No. 1 is about $235,000,000," he said. "... the reduction of administrative expenditures which it is probable will be brought about by the taking effect of the reorganizations specified in the plan is estimated as nearly as may be at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 annually, a substantial lowering of the existing overhead."

The President also asserted the nation was not "free" if its administration was weak.

"But we are free if we know, and others know, that we are strong, that we can be tough as well as tender-hearted; and that what the American people decide to do can and will be done, ca-pably and effectively, with the best national equipment that mod-ern organizing ability can supply in a country where management and organization is so well understood in private affairs.

"My whole purpose in submitting this plan is to improve the administrative management of the republic and I feel confident that our nation is united in this central purpose, regardless of differ-ences upon details."

W. A. Baughn, foreman of the grand jury, presided yesterday at another special session which studied various committee reports Mitchell C. Bishop, assistant superintendent of public works, and Mose Holland, county purchasing agent, are among department heads appearing.

Grand jury presentments are slated to be made Friday, and indications yesterday were that they will make many drastic recom-mendations, including a proposal to establish a county manager.

DRIVER ACQUITTED IN CRIMINAL COURT

J. E. Raley Found Not Guilty in Traffic Case.

J. E. Raley, 1231 Fairview road. N. E., yesterday was acquitted by a jury in the criminal court of Fulton county on charges of operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants.

Arrested as the result of a traffic accident on Ellis street on November 26, Raley was charged with driving while intoxicated. Half a score of witnesses yesterday told Judge Jesse M. Wood and the jury that they were "close to the defendant and did not smell any intoxicants."

tates or congressional districts by its centralized banking control.

Asked if he believed such political influence had been exercised in Georgia, the spare, 49year-old banking expert looked unsmilingly over gold pince-nez glasses and asserted:

"I don't think it has, and I think that our nonmember or our state system of banks offer protection against that, but it does not cause me to strain my mind in the least to conceive that some administration in the future would use the power that they have-or would have through a centralized system—for exactly the purposes I have stated."

Gormley said the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, "while nominally a nonpolitical organization," is "just as full of politics as every other governmental agency."

Chairman Lanier asked if the government could "make a state adopt a policy, whether or not it wants to," by bank pressure.

"They can whip any state," replied Gormley. "They can whip any congressional district."
"Do you mean to say," asked Representative Cleveland Rees, of Webster county, "that like the banks are now being controlled by politics they could just control the conditions within a particular congressional district?

"Yes, sir," answered Gormley.
"And crucify the business intersts in that district?" pressed Rees. "Yes, sir.'

Refugee Children

It is difficult to understand the reasoning of opponents to the plan to open the immigration doors of the United States wide enough to permit entry, above the quota laws, of 20,000 refugee children from Central Europe.

These children are of an age when their characters are still subject to the moulding influence of environment and training. It is certain that they will find homes, as adopted children, with worthy and responsible American families. This is assured by the fact that they will be placed, for adoption, by organizations whose trained workers have had remarkable success in the placing of orphaned children.

The demand for children for adoption is always far greater than the supply. There is not the slightest doubt that the 20,000 would be absorbed into the average, substantial life of America without disruption.

The number involved, when considered in ratio to the population of 130,000,000, is so small as to be negligible.

Not all these children are from Jewish families. The intolerance and persecution of the European dictators does not stop at the bounds of Jewry. A large proportion are children of non-Jewish parentage whose families, for one fantastic reason or another, have been subjected to the heavy hand of Nazi oppression.

America is founded upon the theory that all men are born equal and that there shall be no discrimination because of race or religion. To oppose the admission of these 20,000 children on such grounds, is to brand ourselves as unfit for the privileges of American citizenship. Intolerance has no place in the heart or mind of any worthy citizen of this land of freedom.

Likewise, refusal to admit these little ones means that, forever after, the sneering charge of hypocrisy will be leveled by critics and enemies whenever American sympathy for the innocent victims of persecution is voiced. It is meaningless to voice horror at Nazi outrages when we ourselves are so intent upon remaining aloof that we turn deaf ears to the pleas of

There was a story, told long ago, about the victim of thieves and brutal attackers. In his case two men were given opportunity to save. One was a Pharisee and one was a Samaritan. America is today faced with the same opportunity, the same choice between mercy and cruel indifference.

Under the Sea

Because of oil deposits beneath the ocean bed, just off the California coast, the question of ownership of that land which lies beyond the low-tide mark but within the three-mile territorial limit offshore, has been raised in congress. The issue threatens to become a major question, although there is probability that congress itself will dodge the question and leave it to the supreme court to settle.

The importance of the question rests upon the desire to set aside these offshore oil deposits as reserve for the United States navy. The federal government claims it has primary claim to this underwater property and can, therefore, do as it pleases with these oil sources. The states concerned, however, counter with the claim that they own the territory in question and it is this knotty problem that must be solved before the oil can be allotted.

The federal government contends, for one point, that title to the underwater territory is its property because it is the federal navy which defends those waters from any possible enemy. On the other hand, the states argue that the area of each state rightfully extends to the end of the three-mile limit, just as does the area between lowtide and hightide marks.

The question is further complicated by arguments as to whether the territorial rights actually stop at the three-mile limit, or extend further. Of the 20 coastal states involved, Texas, Louisiana and Florida, each originally a Spanish colony, claim 10.36 English miles, on the contention that their territorial waters were measured in terms of Spanish leagues, and one Spanish league is slightly more than three English miles. Louisiana, too, claims that the limit should be 27 miles off shore. This is because the threemile limit was first set because it was the utmost distance at which artillery could be effective. Modern artillery, Louisiana argues, is effective at a 27-mile range, hence the ocean territory rights should be extended that far. There is no legal precedent upon which the issue may be decided. Georgia, of course, is interested because of her own coastline. The decision in the case, when it is at last reached. may have important repercussions in every state with any coastline at all.

It is worth watching

Retailers' Forum

In Washington, on May 22 and 23, there will be held a conference which may bring about results more far-reaching to the mass of the people of this country than any other in recent years.

It is the Retailers' National Forum which will bring together leaders in the science of retail business of all types and classifications. Not only will the independent, single store operators be there, but the great department stores and the far-flung chain store organizations will be represented.

It has been recognized by those behind this forum that the greater problems in the field of distribution—which is fundamentally retailing -apply alike to the one-store operator and to the chain store executive. This meeting provides the first opportunity for retailers to get together and discuss those basic problems upon which not only their own success, but the economic advancement of the country as a whole,

It has been truthfully said, many times, that the greatest failure in the American economic picture lies in the field of distribution. This nation has perfected the arts of production beyond the dreams of other parts of the world. This nation has the greatest consumer market imaginable. If distribution matched the other two factors, the problems of unemployment, of poverty and of relief would automatically be solved.

It is stated that retail interests, constituting the third largest activity in the nation-exceeded only by manufacturing and agriculturehave less representation in the field of government than any others. Whether this be true or not, it is certain that the needs of retailing can never be supplied unless retailers themselves make those needs vocal.

There is an impressive list of speakers on the program for the Retailers' National Forum, including President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, General Robert E. Wood, etc., etc. And the range of topics for discussion is, at least, as important and impressive as the speakers themselves.

It is entirely within the range of probability that, from this conference, will come a new conception of the place of retailing in the national economy and a new vision for a more efficient system of distribution among all the people, for the future.

Judge E. D. Thomas

Few Georgia jurists acquired for themselves the reputation for knowledge of the law, impartial wisdom and, at the same time, human understanding that was enjoyed by Judge E. D. Thomas, of the Fulton superior court. His unexpected death, on Monday night, was not only a severe shock to the entire community, but marked the closing of a career distinguished beyond most men's.

For more than 16 years Judge Thomas had served as a superior court judge and, prior to that, had rendered important service as chief justice of the Atlanta municipal court.

His passing struck hardest, perhaps, among the legal fraternity of the city and county where, naturally, he found most of his friends. But Judge Thomas did not confine his activities to the court. He was, in the finest sense of the term, a civic leader and there have been few lay members of his church—he was a Baptist-who have been more active or have served the cause of religion more unselfishly.

Every citizen of Fulton county is the loser by Judge Thomas' death. But his passing comes at a time when his family and friends can oint to a career replete with service and, in this fact, they can find comfort in their hour

EMIGRANT FARMERS

(From The Jacksonville Florida Times-Union.)
The response reported to have been received to the Brazilian government's invitation for North American farmers to come to the South American countries is not at all surprising to the observers who have viewed the growing problems of the agriculturists of the United States.

What, one might ask, is the advantage of leaving the United States and traveling several thousand miles from home to become an agricultural Aside from the immediate material gain of a little land, the venture might seem a bit of a gamble at first thought.

However, the South American government is making the settlement of its lands have some attraction by offering grants of 40 to 50 acres to suitable agricultural immigrants in the state of Parana and Sao Paulo, both in the temperate zone.

An analysis of conditions in the rural sections of thic ountry would reveal that there are not as many prosperous farmers in the United States as The irony of the situation is that prosperity which one was more common amongst the farmers of the United States was made possible through the same type of pioneering that appears to be possible in the South American

The most natural impulse is for scores of American farmers to turn over in their minds many times the proposition offered by Brazil. It appears to them as the same ray of hope that came to their progenitors years ago. It may be

From the clamor, however, that is raised by South American countries for world markets, and their almost distressing complaint that the United States does not take enough of their agricultural products, the question naturally arises as to whether the pioneering agriculturist would the devil for the witch" in such a venture

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NEW DEAL AND POLITICS WASHINGTON, April 25 .- Since ject has remarked, "If there's a war, politics are out," discussions of politics at such a time may be a trifle ephemeral. But, so long there is no war, it is extremely important to know what political weapons remain in the New Deal's depleted armory

So far, the efforts of the President and his New Dealers to gain control of the Democratic party have not been successful. Perbecause he has not made up his own mind, the President has been highly uncommunicative as to 1940. But, while they do not know what their chief may have up his sleeve, the men closest to him now admit that, if a New Dealer is to get the 1940 nomina-tion, strong measures are immediately called for. The remaining three months of the present congressional session are named as the possible action proposed is the old expedient—a spending drive. It may be the plan has not even been proposed to the President. But that does not diminish the importance of the fact that New Deal leaders are discussing an extra-budgetary spending program of huge proportions, the money to be used for public works Convinced as they are of the vital economic need for spending, the New Deal leaders believe that such a spending program will usher in real prosperity, which, in turn, will restore the New Deal's po-litical strength. They are so urgent to act that their talk suggests variations on Andrew Marvel's theme:

"But at my back I always hear Time's winged chariot hurrying near."

MEANING OF GANG-BUSTING Unfortunately, even if the President is persuaded, and vote-getting hospitals and public health are made to bulk large in the new program, an economy-minded congress is very likely to beat spending beyond the present budget. All of which emphasizes the importance of weapon No. .2. To put it bluntly, the second weapon is the remarkable cleanup of the courts and of law enforcement now being carried on by Attorney General Frank Murphy. Of themselves, the attorney general's doings are vastly important. Political judges driven from the bench; trading in receiverships and refereeships attacked; the strange political sink-holes and hog-wallows in the Justice Department suddenly disinfected; such machines as that of Tom Pendergast, of Kansas City, openly assaulted—these are heartening achievements which give hope that democratic government can be decent and honest in all its ramifications.

However, it would be childish to ignore the achievement's political significance. The powerful local organizations are threatened by Murphy, both frankly in incidents like the Pendergast indictment, and indirectly through their henchmen, the political judges and political Justice Department officials. More of the organizations are on Murphy's list. A few will be destroyed or much damaged. Others will be frightened. And the New Deal will begin to share Tom Dewey's gang-busting halo, at the same time that some of its enemies within the Democratic party are rendered impotent.

PRESIDENT'S LEVERAGE As for the third and by far the ons, it is the President himself. The President's energetic support is indispensable to Democratic success in 1940. His party's need for him gives the President a tremendous leverage.

Unfortunately for the New Deal, the signs are that, tremendous as this leverage is, it will not be sufficient to force one of the President's hand-picked men on the Democratic convention. There are certain candidates, such as Postmaster General James A. Farley Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who have served so long and faithfully that the President could not threaten to refuse his support to them. The leverage must be increased, and there are only two ways the President can increase it. He can either offer himself as candidate for renomination, or threaten to offer himself unless his man is accepted.

As for the second alternative, the maneuver would have to be private and, if the threat were ignored and Hull or Farley nominated, the President could not do nuch. A third-term attempt is much more feared by the old-line Democrats. Postmaster General Farley, with his great power, would almost certainly go along, and many believe that the President could gain his end. The only troubles are that he would have to make an open demand for renomination, and would surely be opposed, probably by the forces of Vice President John N. Garner. With his party split and the third-term tradition against him, he would find the campaign tough going. Indeed, it should not be forgotten that whoever is nonn-nated by the Democrats will probably find the campaign tough Indeed, it should not be forgotten that whoever is nomigoing. W A SHINGTON, Conscription D. C., April 25.— England is reluctant to order conscription and France is kicking about it. There is nothing new about that. England did not have as complete a conscription in the world war as other nations and was very slow at adopting it at all. France never ceased to argue that England could have had more men on the western

But conscription for the army fell into disrepute under Charles II, because it was too often used to sift out all the bums, drunks and criminals in the community and dump them into the army. If a man didn't have a drag or was otherwise undesirable he was drafted, otherwise he could escape. Impressment" for the navy continued longer. That was on on for our war of 1812. Political influence could "fix" the registration lists so that favored names never were "drafted" from jury-wheels-because they never had been dropped in.

The Draft When we entered the World War, it was In U. S. apparent right away that not enough Americans wer going to volunteer to go as far away as France to defend this country from "invasion." At the same time, it was freely said, as it was said in England, "conscription won't work in America."

ONE WORD MORE

BY RALPH McGILL

20,000 CHILDREN It is difficult to imagine opposition to the senate resolution which proposes to admit 20,000 German refugee children to the United States this year and a like number in 1940. Each child will be placed in a foster home. They will be guaranteed by the people who take them. There will be no burden on welfare associations. There will be no dislocation of industry. America will gain children who may be expected to become worthy,

Only a few individuals and a few organizations have opposed it. The American Legion, for some inexplicable reason, opposes it. I would be inclined to accept General Hugh Johnson's amendment: that children from other nations where children have been the vic-tims of cruelty and war, also be included in the lists of those per-

The plan seems so obviously the humanitarian thing to do; so patently the sensible thing to do; so palpably the desirable thing to do, that I cannot think of any reason to oppose it. We obtain, through the ordinary channels of immigration, many who are undesirable; many who begin publicly to oppose this government before they are able to speak the language, and this opportunity to obtain a selected list of children who will, it may be assu up to be citizens, entirely appreciative of this country and its ideals, ought to be welcomed.

THE REAL VICTIMS Children, after all, are the real victims. For that reason a distinguished committee, including Cardinal Mundelein, William Allen White as the south, Frank Porter Graham, president of North Carolina University, are at work in behalf of the children.

Germans make fine citizens. America has had no better citizens come to her shores than the German Jews and Christians, who have helped contribute to her history and advancement. To rescue children from Germany before they become imbued with the hatreds and the generally dangerous thinking of that unfortunate section of the world, would be a desirable act.

To me the most terrible thing happening to people in Germany is what is happening to the children. To have them grow up knowing nothing else and with no opportunity to know anything other than that disseminated and firmly implanted by the German government, is the greatest tragedy. One shudders to think what might be expected from this and subsequent generations.

Last year in Germany and, later when Austria was taken, I watched the children marching and singing. The grown-ups have not so many years to live, relatively speaking. But, I kept thinking, watching them march and sing the war songs in Berlin and Vienna, what will they be like when they are come to manhood and womanhood and have children of their own?

I saw the distorted faces of the young people in Vienna, after the "anschluss," marching in the new step, their faces distorted with this new emotion; I saw the young boys learning how to form a line of march; how to jump at the sharp bark of command from one of the older Hitler youths brought in to organize them. I can assure you it was not pretty. Most of them were caught up with the excitement, the new enthusiasm, the marching, the bands. A young mind is plastic. It is possible to make of it about what one Or to destroy it.

THE GREAT REBUKE It seems to me the greatest rebuke Germany could have would be for this group of children to come to another country. A little more than half of the number are Jewish children. The others are Catholic and Protestant. They will be placed in homes according to their religious background.

There is no need to bring the sentimental argument into this proposition. One could do it very easily. The Christian might recall the words of He who so often spoke in behalf of children. The Jew might recall all that part of his religion which bespeaks charity for and love of children. It would be very easy to invoke pathos; to write of the mothers, Jewish, Catholic and Protestant, who are willing to give up their children that the children may escape the complete hopelessness of their native land. That is not, it seems to me, necessary or proper. The proposition is, on the face of it, desirable. Our welfare boards would not be given any extra expense; our charities would not be called upon. These children, whom we are asked to take, would have their support guaranteed. They would be medically certified as sound in body and mind. They would be a very desirable addition to our country, and to its future. It is by far a better plan than the hit-and-miss feature of immigration, and there ought to be no real opposition to the bill. In fact, I think it might be an excellent idea for us all to go to work in behalf of the senate resolution, and urge that these children be permitted to come to the homes of those who want them.

If she finds it necessary to throw away vegetables after she gets home, the next day she moves her business to some other store. To meet this modern development in the housewife's attitude, the grocery store of today jealously guards the standards of excellence in all products. All this is a phase of modern life that the Coorgia farmer is slow in comprehending. To him, a turnip is a turnip, regardless of whether one looks like a radish and another like a pumpkin. He got 'em all out of the turnip patch and turnips they are.

Fail to Sort Produce.

Too many believe that if they tie a few healthy-sized carrots up with a few stringy, under-sized ones they have struck a fair average. They don't hear the arguments the grocer gets from the housewife who knows the large carrots will take twice as long to boil as the stringy carrots, and she wants 'em all one size or none at

The wholesale produce dealer and the retail dealer of today know they must meet those standards. It is known to the trade as grad-

The wholesale produce dealer has neither time nor inclination to assign himself such a dreary task. Nor is it necessary. He knows there are plenty of tomato sources in other states which are positively dependable. He goes to them. That's one reason why most of the vegetable business through the Atlanta market is handled by farmers from states other than Georgia. They have established reputations. Georgia has a few established reputations and the produce

Industrial Board Official Sees $184,000 Yearly Saving to Employers.

The State Insurance Commis sion, on recommendation of the industrial board, yesterday ordered a 9.2 per cent reduction in workmen's compensation insurance rates in Georgia, effective retroactively as of March 31.

A. J. Hartley, secretary-treasur-er of the industrial board, which made the recommendation after a study of the full rate schedule said the decrease would result in a savings to Georgia employers of approximately $184,000 a year. Hartley added that a part of the rate reduction was made possible through economies in the administrative costs of the industrial board which handles workmen's compensation. The administrative expense was fixed at 2.7 per cent, he said, instead of 3.1 per cent previously authorized. Th cent figure, Hartley added, is the lowest administrative expens figure in 10 years.

AID IN SEGREGATING PRISONERS PLEDGED

Welfare Unit Promises Help to Correction Board in Penal Move.

By The Associated Press.
The State Board of Correction obtained a promise of assistance from the State Welfare Depart ment yesterday in a move to seg regate approximately 300 youthful prisoners in the penal system.

Governor E. D. Rivers, the State Prison and Parole Board, and Welfare and Highway Department of Chairman Grover C. Byars, Rome, said the board had an appropriation of about $101,000 a year—after 56 per cent budget restriction-to finance a system of 1,500 inmates.

The Highway Department was asked to buy all products it could from the Tattnall prison industrial Chief products manufactured there usable by the road department are concrete pipe and guard rails.

Byars' said highway officials promised "to help all they could."
Director Braswell Deen told the board the Welfare Department would "try to find a place" for the approximately 300 boys under 18 years of age now imprisoned with older inmates. Crowded con ditions at the boys' training school, where they are supposed to be kept until 18 years old, have prevented accommodation there.

$50,000,000 Made Available Immediately for Air Expansion.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(P) Congress signalled the start of the big expansion of the army air corps today when it finally passed along to President Roosevelt a $508,789,824 appropriation for the War Department.

Of this money, $50,000,000 will be available immediately for beginning the program to raise the air force strength to 6,000 planes. The remainder is to be spent in the next fiscal year for various purposes, such as bolstering Panama canal and seacoast defenses, improving military posts, and buy-ing such materials as tanks and antiaircraft artillery.
Meantime President Roosevelt

signed a bill authorizing $66,800,-000 for 10 new naval air bases and the expansion of existing bases. It was estimated that the new projects would be built in three years. They include a major $17,000,- 000 base near Jacksonville, Fla., a $9,138,000 base at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and an $8,741,000 base on Kodiak island, near the Aleutians. Congress must grant appropriations for them.

In another field of national defense, the house approved today and sent to the senate a measure authorizing expenditure of $100,000,000 for the acquisition of vital war materials.

The general idea is that you shove off in boats, without hook and line or any other equipment generally associated with fishing, and return within a couple of hours with 18 or 20

Druid Hills Club will feature a busy "special" day tournament program for Atlanta's many that's the catch. One floats along the willow hanks and simply that's the catch. One floats along the willow banks and simply grabs them as they jump into the boat. No tackle is necessary.

> I'll admit it sounds fantastic. But it happens at Jackson lake frequently. This is one of the few lakes not having a closed season and so plentiful are the trout, which Homer Harris, who has lived on the lake since it was formed by the dam, says are "old river trout that have been here since Noah's flood," that it simply wouldn't be sporting to use hook and line or artificial lures. Fishermen are complaining the fish aren't giving them a sporting chance.

Carl Flock, who operates an inn at Jackson, proposed a trip ound the lake to prove what many old inhabitants are still skeptical about—that is, the idea that trout actually will jump

Well, we started out in rainy weather with ominous clouds forming a grandmother's gray shawl across the sky. Surely, this was no day even to expect to see a fish.

It wasn't long, however, until, at the edge of the boat, there was a mighty swirl and then a heavy slap and jar as one of the granddaddies of the trout family made a mighty effort to jump in the boat but failed to

"Hand me a paddle," said Kenneth Rogers. "There seems to be some question as to whether I am hunting for fish or the fish are trying to catch me."

Down around a bend in the 4,572-acre lake we joined the flotilla of three small boats engineered by Mr. Homer Harris. Each boat had a high side. "It may be a good idea to head in and park at the cabin until this heavy rain stops," said Mr.

"I don't think we will have very much luck at jumping trout right now. The weather isn't so bad, but that fellow with the camera looks kinda silly holding that umbrella. Whoever heard of anybody going fishing with an umbrella?"

IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE."

As soon as the skies had cleared a bit the outboard motors were started and Homer Harris, who can match fishing skill Good Time To Catch Up with the cagiest trout that ever swam in these waters, led the way to a small island.

"We'll head in there and see if something doesn't happen." The boats were paddled into the willows and Homer Harris said, "Look sharp, now. The trout will jump into the boat before you know it."

And that's what happened on the first jump. Our boat, The second round of the special And that's what happened on the first jump. Our boat, handicap East Lake tournament is handled by Carl Flock, turned away as a pronounced slapping was heard in one of the boats.

"Hold him up, Mr. Homer!" yelled Carl Flock.
"Trick stuff," muttered Kenneth Rogers. "They waited until my back was turned."

"All right," answered Mr. Homer, who has keen ears, "we'll paddle on to those willows yonder and I must warn you again, Mr. Rogers, to keep a sharp eye out."

The flotilla moved on the willows and Rogers was up or his feet with camera pointed toward the middle boat. There The second round is scheduled was a swirl and a quick slap.

"Yeh, I saw him that time," said Kenneth Rogers, "but I still don't believe it."

This operation was repeated several times and, as it hap pened, the big one always got way. There was one particularly big trout which always found an opening between the boats or shot around the side.

"I believe I could get a picture of that big one if he would jump in the boat," said Mr. Rogers. "We'll get him," promised Mr. Homer. "Let's try some other places and come back here later.' Various spots were tried and trout were in evidence every Miss Maddox is centering her where. But they were plenty smart. Never did more than efforts on the Southern, to be held one at a time try to jump into a boat and, in some cases, there were magnificent leaps of six feet or more which carried them where. But they were plenty smart. Never did more than all the way across the boats.

The party returned four times to the lair of the big trout before, finally, he described a quick, graceful arc and landed on the bottom of the middle boat. This big fellow weighed six and three-quarter pounds.

There may be some argument between the proponents of hook and line fishing and the nontackle variety of Izzak Walton. It probably requires more skill in the former case, but it's work either way. The trout is no sucker fish.

REWARD COMES AT THE FINISH.

Grease was bubbling in deep pans when the boats pulled in the dock and soon the cooks, superintended by Mrs. Flock, had the fish rolled in meal and ready for cooking.

Succulent hush puppies were dropped in deep fat, and they and the fish came out a golden brown. French fries, combination salad and hot coffee completed the

There was no conversation for a spell. And at the conclusion of the hearty meal, Dr. O. B. Howell, Butts county commissioner, took several members of the party for a spin around the lake in his speedy cruiser.

The party included Gene Harris, Bill Harris, Jesse Lummus, T. J. Harris, Johnnie Jones, W. D. Major, Bob Flock, Ben Cooper and George O. Sims, resident engineer of the highway department.

Jackets, Tide Open 2-Game Set Today

Tech's Red Oliver Faces Francis Lee in Opener; Vandy Here Friday and Saturday.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Red Oliver, only Tech pitcher to win a game this year, will shoot his righthanded curves at Alabama's Crimson Tide this afternoon at 4 o'clock on Rose Bowl field in the first of a two-game series. Bobby Dodd's team boasts of only two victories this season ver Vanderbilt, the other over South Carolina-and Oliver hurled both of them. He will be opposed by Francis Lee, righthanded ace of the Alabama staff.

It will be the first home appearance of the Jackets this season and the first of four games on consecutive days at Rose Bowl. After the Tide series, the Techs meet Vanderbilt Friday and Saturday.

NEWMAN HITS. Lee Wins Second as Cubs Take Third Straight; Reds Cop.

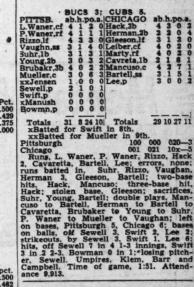

By The Associated Press.

The amazing Phillies won their fourth straight game yesterday, thumping the New York Giants 8 to 1 with a 12-hit attack and behind the five-hit pitching of Claude Passeau. Gil Brack hit a homer for the Phils.

Bill Lee, ranking pitcher of the National league last year, hurled his second 1939 victory as the Chicago Cubs whipped Pittsburgh, 5 to 3, for their third straight tri-umph. Lee held the Pirates to 8 hits while the Cubs made 10 off Truett Sewell and Bill Swift. Behind the steady seven-hit pitching of Luke Hamlin, the Dodgers ended their three-game losing streak by nipping the Boston Bees 3 to 2. An error by Debs Garms let in the winning run in the seventh.

The Cincinnati Reds mustered their hitting power behind Lloyd Moore, a recruit pitcher of much promise, to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 5 to 1. Moore gave up ten hits, but kept them well scattered.

Johnstown Breaks 14-Year-Old Track Record at Jamaica

BOOSTS STOCK BY 5-LENGTH WIN

Son of Jamestown Goes Mile and 70 Yards in 1:40 4-5.

NEW YORK, April 25 .- (A)-Kentucky Derby odds on Johnstown tumbled today when the big bay from William Woodward's Belair stud came within one-fifth of a second of the American record for a mile and 70 yards while scoring a hollow victory over three rivals at Jamaica.

A galloping winner of the six furlongs of the Paumonok handicap ten days ago, Johnstown reeltional time of 1:40 4-5 under 120 pounds and registered by five lengths. The time clipped two-fifths of a second off the track record of 1:41 1-5 set by Sting in 1925. The American record of 1:40 3-5 is held jointly by Mike Hall and Chasar.

Jimmy Stout broke Johnstown in front and he never was headed. He opened up two lengths on George D. Widener's Eight Thirty around the first bend and con tinued to widen the gap the farther he traveled.

Stout eased the Woodward ace up in the final strides, but he still held a five-length advantage over Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Lovely when he passed the finish line. Eight Thirty, a Preakness eli-gible making his first start since finishing second to Porter's Mite in the Belmont futurity last fall, tired after six furlongs and finished third, six lengths back of Lovely Night. By ROY WHITE.

Showing appreciation for the fine leadership of last year, members of the Atlanta Athletic Club Tuesday night approved recommendations of the nominating committee and returned all the present officers for another term.

"Gentlemen, it was with much difficulty and a long drawn out affair, but your nominating committee, after fully one minute of deliberation, recommends that your present officers be renamed for another year's term. They have done a swell job and certainly de-serve one more chance," said W. A. Fuller, chairman of the nominating committee.

"We further recommend that the nominations be now closed and stand closed and that these names be confirmed next Tuesday at the regular meeting of the board of directors," he concluded.

More Than Six Persons in Every Ten Hold This View, National Survey by Dr. Gallup Shows.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, April 25 .- A national survey of public opinion just completed by the American Institute reveals a widespread public impression that there are many people on relief who could get jobs if they tried.

The survey, whose function was to gather and analyze the opinions of a cross-section of voters throughout the country, found that more than six persons in every 10 have this impression. Its existence forms one of the important public relations problems of the WPA.

The issue put to voters in all walks of life was:
"Do you think there are any persons on relief in your commu-nity who could get jobs in private industry if they tried?"

The results were: No 31 second question asked voters for their opinion as to about what proportion of persons on relief in

Ex-Tax Collector Is Granted Pardon

Mrs. William Keller, former Talbot county tax collector sentenced last month to serve two years in the penitentiary for embezzlement, was granted a conditional pardon yesterday by Governor E. D. Fivers.

The Governor said Mrs. Keller was freed upon recommendation by formal resolution of the State Board of Correction, petition from 134 Talbot county citizens, and recommendations of three county officials, Superior Court Clerk J. W. Trussell, Sheriff John W. Shipp and School Superintendent J. C. Watts.

The pardon was conditioned upon Mrs. Keller going to live with a sister in Columbia county who agreed to provide necessary medical care, Rivers as-serted.

25 per cent, or one reliefer in every four.

Although the WPA recently found that only 1.3 per cent of relief cases had been carried on the rolls unlawfully, no complete study has been made to determine the number of reliefers who, although eligible for assistance present, might find work if they

The survey likewise shows that a large group of persons now on relief think the relief rolls contain persons who could find jobs. Among a cross-section of reliefers interviewed the Institute found approximately two-fifths (38 per cent) believing this, as contrasted to 69 per cent for the nation as a

Arrival of Visitors From Hawaii Tickets Now on Sale Inspires Gala Family Reunion Here

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Captain and Mrs. C. D. Irwin and their little sons, Kendrick Y and Lawson, arrive today to visit the Channing Whitmans, their presence will complete a congenial family circle. Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Whitman are sisters, you know, having been before their marriages Jean and Neil Kendrick. Since Edith Kendrick, a third sister, recently returned here from Hawaii, where she spent a year and a half with the rwins, Sally predicts that the tropical islands will form the chief topic of conversation among adults of the family.

Comprising the younger family group will be three cousins who are making each other's acquaintance for the first time. They include Kendrick and Lawson Irwin, age 5 and 2, respectively, and Mary, petite daughter of the Whitmans.

HELEN RANDALL'S loyalty is torn between the army and the navy! But who could blame her when cadets and midshipmen vie with each other as to who shall claim her spare time, with invitations either to West Point or Annapolis arriving in almost every mail? Helen, who is the lovely schoolgirl daughter of the Luther Randalls, is enjoying her first year at Mount Vernon Seminary in Washington, D. C., as you know, but rarely does she spend a week end at school. She was among the popular belles attending the "drag" at Annapolis last Saturday evening, but to show that she is not partial to the navy, she has promised to spend the week end of May 6 at West Point.

Georgia Oliver, another popular Atlantan, was Helen's companion for the visit to Annapo-lis, and on the trip to West Point she will be accompanied by tha Merritt, of Atlanta, and Mary Ann McKinney, of Dothan, Ala., who attended Washington Seminary here before going to Mount

Next week end these attractive belles will be hostesses them-selves, for their annual spring prom is scheduled for Saturday evening. The Mount Vernon girls are allowed to give two big af-fairs each year, it seems, one in spring. The brilliant dance on Saturday will be preceded by a tea-dance, and to both affairs are invited friends from Annapolis, West Point, University of Virginia, and the many colleges in and around the national capital, FUTURE comments made by Martha Jane Blackwell will take on additional interest, for the popular college belle was recently one of seven Stephens College students pledged to Sigma Lambda Chi, honorary speech sorority at the Missouri Institution.

Martha, who is a member of the senior class, has been prominent in debate and dramatic work since she first enrolled at Stephens and was pledged on the basis of her excellency in public speaking. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Blackwell, of Canton, but spends much of her time where she is a popular member of the younger set.

YOU KNOW that one of Atlanta's most popular belles will announce her engagement Sunday to a well-known out-of-town swain who attended college in this city? . . . That Seymour Thompson, who is convalescing from a recent illness, received "the little yellow basket" filled with everything nice, from Anne Pappenheimer, George Yundt and Dan Franklin? . . . That a petite and vivacious brunette will wed a socially prominent bachelor in the legal profession in late June?

You probably have your own ideas about where to exercise, but you can't overlook the common-sense of Mrs. Castle's theory that "a graceful posture is the best possible exercise, because it goes on all the time." She also thinks that if the average woman would find a pleasurable exercise to do every day, she would never have to wor-ry about her figure. Mrs. Castle has an extremely graceful carriage and she enjoys dancing as much as she ever did. Her theories certainly seem to work out for her for her measurements are lovely: Bust, 35 inches; waist, 27 inches; hips, "Not bad," was her comment,

Lillian Mae's Perfect All-Use Frock

Sponging In-Laws

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield

Get me right, I adore my husband, have no fault to find with him except that he's too generous with his kin. The first few years we lived with his family and he paid every cent of the home expenses while they used their money for new cars, trips and whatnot. Finally, I persuaded him that we could get along faster if we moved out and built a place of our own, which we did. By working hard and saving every cent possible, we paid out of debt in a year and own our home and store outright. But his family knows a good thing when they see it and they are habitually sending over for produce for which they never pay a cent. I resent their spongrequire his folks to pay for what they get as they are amply able. He can't see it and we end by furnishing them with anything they come for. Is this right and should I put up with it?

Answer: No, it isn't right. But what wife can claim her rights when her husband loves his clan and enjoys sharing his wherewithall with them. You can make yourself unhappy, tear your hair and go into hysterics over the taking in-laws, but you won't stop the leaks that leave a tell-tale streak from the store to their home. And what will it net you? Nothing but increased irritation with them and your nusband which will eventually build up a barrier between him

Then think about the other side of the case. You should be thankful that you are under your own while the groceries an item they total much less than the upkeep of a household which your husband once assumed. Your financial future is not being jeopardized by his generosity even if your temper is benig tried by it.

There's not one prosperous family in a thousand that isn't being called upon by relatives or in-laws for hand-outs, lifts tide-overs or gifts. There's always a sponger, or a can't-make-the-grade, or a sick and indigent or a debt-ridden indi-vidual on the horizon of every provident person. Of course, each family thinks its case is peculiar, it being human nature to see our own worries and annoyances as the worst in the world. But as every heart knoweth its own bitterness so every family knows its own deadheaders. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

MY DAY President Will Open World's Fair Sunday World's Fair Sunday

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—Miss Thompson and I had a quiet and un-eventul trip back on the train last night. Mr. John Blum, who was on the train, sent me a copy of the arrangements being made for April 30, when the President opens the New York World's Fair. It read like a very hectic day, but I suppose it will all go off so smoothly that it will be possible to do all the various things described in the time allotted.

Down here it is easy to believe that spring has actually come. It was warm in New York state yesterday, but it is much warmer down here. I took a ride this morning, and noticed that everything is in bloom, and that the work on the new airport is going ahead by leaps and bounds. As far as I can see, this is the only ride I will have for another ten days, unless I get up "before breakfast" at Hyde Park and ride a horse. Though I don't enjoy doing this very much, if it is as lovely up there next week end as it is here now, I shall find myself sorely tempted to arise at dawn, for the spring and fall are the only two seasons when one enjoys riding in the woods at Hyde Park. In the summer the flies make both horse I was told this morning that there is some new kind of preparation which you can put on your horse and which will drive away the insects for three hours, and I hope that we find it works out.

My only concern then will be if it can be applied to the rider, for I don't like to be eaten up any more than the horse does.

At 12:30 a group from the Dalton school in New York city came in to see the White House and to ask me some questions. I was much impressed by the first question propounded: "If you were graduating this year, Mrs. Roosevelt, what would you consider the most important question confronting you as you stepped out into the world?" Quite a question that, especially for women today.

I answered it from the broad standpoint of all young people and suggested that the study of our democracy and the place we should occupy as citizens of it was, perhaps, the most universally important question for youth to confront. For girls in particular, I have an idea that there is an interest in the position of women as it exists in the democracies and as it exists under other forms of government. This question ought to be worthy of a little study by young women. There is no question that restricted general opportunities have a bearing on opportunities for women, and that conditions under which women will live and develop in the future.

To Line or Not to Line. As for draperies, that's an even more complicated question. If the draperies are unlined—and often now such fabrics as chintz and taffeta are being used successfully without lining—then the pains go to finishing the heading, nemming or binding the edges and weighting the drapery so it will hang nicely. If the draperies are to be lined, the problem in-volves also a lining that fits and hangs perfectly without puckering or drawing. "I could be arrested for what I think of it," Glada admitted shortly. "Do you know anything about poultry? Are you really willing to work?"

"Crazy about chicken - broiled, fried or with gravy—if I remember correctly. Sure I'm willing to work. I've got to eat and have a drag on a cigarette now and then. I'm liable to be doing neither—if I don't get some break."

"What is your pame?" "Gern-like in 'fern'-Jones."

"Gern . .? That's unusual."
"Plenty. But the Jones should average it up." The man's flippant air vanished; he plainly was earnest. "See here, Miss Lee, I wish you could find me a job, even for a little while. I'll do my damndest, really. I'll make you a sporting proposition. I'm willing to bunk in the hay and you don't have to pay me wages until I make good . . except a few eats and cigarets. I don't think you would find me so objectionable to have around." He glanced down at the coat lying across his arm. "I pack a toothbrush and a razor. 'em every day. I can't furnish you with any letters of recommenda-end that uncertainty about your breakfast. Then we'll see." "Say, that's swell!"

All the while she was glancing over letters and bills, Glada found her thoughts straying to the redhaired applicant now in the kitchen. She had thought that Irma might not take kindly to the sugestion of an extra meal, but Mrs. enough. Something quite unusual about this Jones person, in addi-tion to his Christian name. of the house to continue her first interview, Irma looked up from her pastry mixing with a broad smile on her motherly face.

"Whoever tries to keep that fellow filled up has got a job cut out for themselves, Miss Glada. But he does seem a likable sort."

A minute later, when swered the summons, Glaton to her in worried tones.

"Irma! You know, "Where is he?"

"Sitting out by the cistern pump, or he was a minute ago.

now and then.
"Do you think you'd like to try it?" she wanted to know when the tour was completed.

"Why, sure." "It isn't permanent. Just until Mr. Peters is able to work."
"I don't mind."

"Very well. If you mean that, I'll take you up. You won't have to sleep in the hay, though. You can have a small room over the kitchen, your meals and . . . three dollars a week. Game? Of course your laundry is included. What amuses you? The wages?"
"No. That's tops. It was the any?"

"Just what you see me in." "Then I'll advance you enough for what you need and a pair of overalls. Let's see . . . You're used to walking, I suppose."

"And how."
"All right then." Glada decided on a test. "They have early breakfast here. Suppose you walk into town as soon as you've eaten in the morning. Meet me in front of the Hub . . . eight sharp. We'll get you a few things and I'll bring you out with me in the car."

"Right. I'll be there." "I wonder," Glada thought. Her spoken answer was, "All right. Suppose you go out and find Jim. Tell him I said that you are to help him. I'll see you later."

"Okay, boss." Late in the afternoon she found occasion to ask young Daniels how his assistant was making out. Why, all right, I guess. You don't have to tell him anything twice, and he don't seem to mind working. He has a funny way of approved, he'd be chasing you talking, when he says anything at down the road. He has a fair judgment . . . as a rule."

"Did he tell you anything about dgment . . . as a rule."
"Oh, dogs seem to like me. I himself at all?"

Taking a short cut home.

"How is it going?" Glada asked pleasantly when her new man came near. "Are you able to find your way around now?"

"Sure. I'm going to like it here. "I hope so. We've been rather short of help since Mr. Peters was hurt. We'll keep you busy, Mr. Jones. That's a warning.

"Gern's good enough."
"All right . . . Gern. That surely is an odd name. I never heard it before. Do you mind telling me if it's a family name?" "It's a camouflage. I'll tell you customed to hard work; at the about it if you won't rib me. My mother named me Algernon. I cut mother named me Algernon. just hope he stays, is all." "I'm rather hoping so myself," Glada admitted. "Goodnight. then."

When she reached home, she said nothing until she had the opportunity to talk to her father

"Daddy," she queried abruptly, "do you know a man by the name of Jones? Gern Jones?"

"Why, I k n o w plenty of Joneses," Ed admitted in surprise, looking up from his paper. "What did you say the first half of it was again?"

"Gern. G-e-r-n."
"No, that's a new one on me.
Why?"

"Well, there was a young man by that name waiting for me when I got out to the place today. He wanted to work . . . any sort of job. He's tall and red-headed. Not exactly homely, but unusual looking."

"Take him on, did you?"
"Yes. The reason I asked was that you said you had tried to find somebody to help me, and he was rather evasive, I thought, He said some milkman told him about Cobb.'

"Well, that lets me out. I'm no milkman. You think he's any account?"

"Remains to be seen, darling. He looks like a hardy enough specimen. I told him to walk into town after breakfast tomorrow and I'd stake him to an advance in the way of overalls and things. That ought to show him up-if he's willing to work for nothing but cigaret money. That's what he said.

"And what are you paying the young gentleman, if that's a fair question?

"Three dollars a week and his "Oh, oh. If he'll be content with that, you've got something,

NEW YORK, April 25 .- (AP)-Europe apparently looked a little better to the stock market today, and domestic business news was not so bad, but early recoveries of fractions to a point or so were reduced or cancelled in many cases at the close. With dealings nearly as sluggish as in the preceding session—transfers totalled 420,810 shares, against 414,110 the day before—brokers generally thought price changes were meaningless. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was unchanged at 43.8.

Some hope was pinned on the overseas picture as rumors were heard that Hitler's reply to the Roosevelt peace plea, scheduled for the Reichstag Friday, might be less vitriolic than expected. In addition the return of the British and French ambassadors to their posts at Berlin revived the thought of a possible "deal" which might turn the warlike tide. Reports the British cabinet had approved compulsory military service indicated to observers that, notwithstanding talked - of pro-posals for settlement of the powers' difficulties, the "anti-aggression" bloc was continuing to strengthen its forces. Also, the British chancellor of the exchequer announced the country's largest peacetime budget, with the equivalent of more than $3,000,-000,000 allotted for defense.

CHICAGO.

NEW YORK, April 25.—(P)—A general liquidating movement—touched off by circulation of 155 delivery notices against May contracts—left cotton futures 2 to 10 points lower today.

Prices rose to net gains of 5 to 10 points at the highs just before the notices began to appear. But the market started to sag as selling of May and transferring from near deliveries forward became more aggressive.

Principal support on the decline came from mill accounts and New Orleans interests. Earlier the market was boosted by short covering, good buying by spot interests in May and July and Bombay demand for October.

Monday's enthusiasm on heels of the export subsidy plan was decidedly modified today, brokers

NEW YORK, April 25 .- (A)-Irregular price patterns were traced in the bond market today. Some United States government loans again struck out for peak marks, gains ranging to 5-32ds of a point, but these were offset by some losses of as much as 3-32ds. While a little more cheerful tone to the foreign news induced buyers to pay slightly higher prices, brokers said, there was still enough uncertainty to temper aggressive action. Among foreign bonds, Italian issues were most in demand. Rome 6 1-2s added 1 7-8 at 52 and Italy

While reports of less favorable growing conditions have been coming over commission house today's news more or less con-firmed trade belief that there has been some change though not radical, in the winter wheat picture. Last week some experts were taking about raising their esti-mates of production and there were comments that the govern-ment's official forecast of 549,000,ment's official forecast of 549,000,-000 bushels might be a little low. Wheat started steady, ignoring a 1-2 to 7-8 lower close at Liver-pool, but soon developed strength and was up 5-8 cent at the end of the first hour. Thereafter liquidation of May contracts prior to the delivery period next month despressed the market but the deferred deliveries continued to forget upward, closing at the best levels.

Most crop complaints came from Kansas and Oklahoma. Fair weather was forecast for Western weather was forecast for Kansas and Nebraska, but unsettled condi-tions were promised for the north-

Bituminous Commission Estimates U. S. Supply at 'Critical Stage.'

NEW YORK, April 25 .- (AP)-The wage and hour negotiations in the soft coal industry remained deadlocked tonight despite the first day's efforts of the federal government's mediator to effect an agreement and return 222 000 min. Texas, and agreement and return 338,000 min-

Dr. John R. Steelman, chief of the Labor Department's conciliation service, took charge of the negotiations as the chairman of the gotiations as the chairman of the Bituminous Coal Commission esti-mated that the nation's supply of soft coal would reach the critical stage, forerunner of a national nouncing a recess until 10 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow. He made no comment on his day's effort.

In Washington President Roose-velt was asked to intervene personally. "If you have not already done so," Representative Ran-dolph, Democrat, West Virginia, wired Mr. Roosevelt, "I strongly urge your personal intervention with a view to promptly settling the bituminous coal strike."

DR. JACKSON URGES TEACHING OF BIBLE

Better Churches Predicated on Word of God, Baptists Told.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 25.—(A) The Bible is primary in the business of building Christian character, the Rev. Dr. Arthur Jackson, of Sayannah, president of the Georgia Baptist convention, told Baptists who assembled here today from all parts of the state for a three-day convention.

Dr. Jackson delivered the prinaddress on the program began with a song and p praise service led by B. B. Mc-Kinney, of Nashville, Tenn., director of music for the National Sun-day School Board. Dr. Jackson's subject was "The Winning Word."

better churches are predicated upon the Word of God," Dr. Jackson said. "There is no substitute for it and the Sunday school teacher who detours with his class into a study of something else cannot justify himself in holding a teachsition in a Bible school.'

Dr. Jackson said the theme of the convention, "Win With the Word," is the objective of a Bible

"The Word is the textbook of our Baptist church schools," he continued, "and at the same time is at the heart of all our system of methods and the chief weapon of the personal witness for Christ. It is also the sword of the spirit who is the guide and companion in the service of every true Christian witness." He added: primary in the business of the churches in building Christian

The delegates to the convention were welcomed by Mayor Thomas Gable and Harry M. Carter, of Calvary Baptist temple.

ROOSEVELT FILLS LABOR BOARD POS

Appointment of William M. Leiserson Acceptable to Both AFL, CIO.

WASHINGTON, April 25 .- (A) In the midst of a congressional campaign to revise the National Labor Relations Act, President Roosevelt today named William M. Leiserson, economist and student of collective bargaining, for a five-year term on the Labor Relations Board.

Leiserson, now chairman of the National Mediation Board under the railway labor act, was picked to succeed Donald Wakefield whose recess reappointment last August brought strong opposition from the American Federation of Labor.

The Leiserson appointment drew praise from several senate memers and appeared to be acceptable to organized labor.

AFL President William Green said: "The federation will not interpose any objection to the appointment of Dr. Leiserson."

From Lee Pressman, CIO genrom Lee Pressman, ClO general counsel, came the comment:
"Quite satisfactory to the ClO."
Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, said the change in the board makeup would make little difference. He said Smith was the "least redical member."

"Good counsel, Dr. Wong Tai," said the queen with an approving smile. She turned then and strode to the base of the golden idol where she took up a padded stick. "Now watch closely," she directed, "and you shall see what no man of the outer world has ever seen before."

Ahtea struck twice upon a deep-toned gong. Before the vibrations died a door opened and twelve fire-priests entered. Three times they circled the image of Pantu. As they completed the last circle, the queen of Tohr clutched an iron lever and pulled it toward her.
